RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

Researcher
Water Climate Trust — Jun. 2025 – Present

- Analyzing the relationship between in-stream flows, water policy, and Indigenous food systems
- Laying the groundwork for a peer-reviewed publication on Indigenous water rights and ecological justice
- Contributing to ongoing Tribal policy efforts aimed at securing equitable water access and protecting cultural and ecological resources
- Collaborating with Tribal partners to co-develop a public-facing fact sheet that supports community advocacy

Researcher — Mar. 2024 – Present
Fire Generation Collaborative

- Co-facilitate listening circles grounded in Indigenous research methodology and contribute to the qualitative coding and thematic analysis of transcripts from listening circles
- Support collaborative research processes that center Indigenous knowledge and community priorities
- Consulted on survey design and data interpretation to support mixed-methods analysis; provided insights based on expertise in quantitative research and the sociology of race and ethnicity

Conservation Intern Jun. 2024 – Aug. 2024
Alaskan Conservation Fund

- Conducted field research across remote Alaskan Native communities to identify ecological monitoring needs and document Indigenous perspectives to support the Aleut Community of St. Paul Island Tribal Government's ISN department
- Produced literature reviews tailored for non-specialist audiences, including Tribal leaders and program staff
- Supported the development of culturally relevant, community-informed ecological monitoring strategies
- Developed community health fact sheets on mercury content in marine mammals, highlighting potential risks and key information for public awareness
